Zen City Spa

Traditional Asian massage has been practiced in more or less its present form for more than 1,000 years. It is part of the family of oriental techniques based on the healing theory of intrinsic energy flows and energy balance. In today's words, Thai massage removes the feeling of fatigue, muscle convulsions and nerve strain, stimulates blood and lymphatic circulation.

Massage is given by qualified Thai therapists, who have many years' experience working in foreign spa resorts and physiotherapy facilities.
